REED TAKES FLOOR

Texas Senator Holds Floor for Eleven Hours Before Recess is Called.

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Presenting unbroken ranks and armed with an ample supply of material for continuing the campaign of talk and more talk, senate opponents to the administration shipping bill resumed today their filibuster that they started two days ago.

Senator Reed of Missouri started the filibuster of today by resuming the delivery of his address begun last night advocating his resolution to ask the president to enter negotiations with Great Britain and France for the purchase of certain of their possessions in the West Indies. He held before the senators two large maps and pointer in hand illustrated his remarks in teacher fashion.

Senator Johnson of Wisconsin, who is in charge of the bill, met the filibuster with a statement that he was prepared to carry on the fight to the last and would insist on another night session and use all possible means to defeat the filibusters.

Republicans Allow Recess.

The recess taken last night at 11:30, after a session of 12 1-2 hours, allowed the senators to get a fair night's sleep and those who answered to the quorum call this morning appeared reasonably refreshed, including Senator Sheppard of Texas who yielded the floor at 6 o'clock, after speaking for more than six hours and having talked altogether about 11 hours.

Many senators were prepared for an all-night session and several already had taken possession of couches in the lobbies in the hope of catching brief periods of sleep during the night. When recess was taken Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, had the floor and was delivering a speech, begun early in the night, on his resolution, proposing that the United States acquire certain possessions from Great Britain and France in the Caribbean.

The senate had been in continuous session since 11 o'clock Tuesday morning with speeches on a variety of subjects, roll calls and demands for quorums which at times could not be mustered being resorted to by obstructionists. The longest speech was by Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, who held the floor all during the day until after six o'clock Tuesday night. He was followed by senators Williams, democrat, Mississippi; Caraway, democrat, Arkansas; and Reed, democrat, Missouri.

Senator Sheppard opened the active filibuster Monday night, beginning to speak at 6:27 o'clock and stopping only when a recess of the senate was taken at 10:10 o'clock. Although he suffered an attack of grippe early this month, he appeared fresh when the senate met Tuesday at 11 o'clock and immediately a quorum was obtained resumed his speech, consisting of a digest of the record of all activities of the league of nations, probably the most complete history of the league that has been compiled. Most of the address had been written in long hand and consisted of a stack of papers nearly a foot high.

Refused Offer of Water.

Senator Sheppard spoke slowly and in a moderate tone, never moving more than two or three feet from his desk. He waved away pages who offered to bring him a glass of water and refused offers of his associates to make a point of no quorum, thereby allowing him a respite. He sat down for a minute or two several times during the day when by unanimous consent conference reports and several minor bills were taken up and passed without debate.

MUCH INTEREST AT FORUM MEET

That the city of Ada should take steps at once to vote a bond issue, the proceeds from which will be used to construct a large pipe line from the springs at Byrd's Mill to the city, was the opinion expressed at a forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday morning.

The line will cost in the neighborhood of a half million dollars, according to surveys which have been made by city engineer Darlington, but such a line will bring enough water to supply a city five times as large as Ada and ought to last indefinitely.

Many stirring speeches were made in favor of the water project. Also respects were paid to those who have anything but a good word for the town.

M. C. Wilson made a stirring appeal for an improvement in the water situation, saying that we must have water if we expect to advance. He was backed up in the appeal by M. C. Grigsby, Ben Schienberg and many others. City Engineer Darlington told what is necessary to put the water system in shape to meet all emergencies for many years to come.

J. F. McKeel told of the resources of the county, pointing to the coal, gas, water and other resources which nature has provided. He also referred to the climate and the boys and girls and educational facilities which have been provided.

C. E. Cunningham called attention to the local pickle factory and urged every citizen to buy only Ada pickles. This appeal was met with a hearty response.

Loyalty to City Urged

W. D. Little talked on loyalty to Ada, outlining what it takes to be loyal to the city. He appealed to the citizenship to help the industries we already have, co-operate with civic bodies, speak a good word for the town at all times, discourage pessimistic talk, encourage oil development and other industries to come in.

While the water situation was the main thing stressed, respects were paid to chronic knockers, Ben Schienberg reported that business is better in Ada than in towns like Breckenridge, Texas, and other cities with a larger population than Ada. He said Ada is not a dead town, and the people here ought to realize that fact and talk of the opportunities we have and the things we are doing.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. Sam McKeel and Walter Wray. Many members talked on various topics. The ball weevil situation was discussed by H. B. Roach and Hardy Dial.

C. E. Cunningham, president, and Ralph Waner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce expressed their gratitude at the meeting. They believe that the citizens are aroused to the necessity of combined effort and that big things will come to Ada this year.

MYSTERY WOMAN SOUGHT AS COG IN MURDER CASE

Remington's "Quaker Girl" Now Only Clue Toward Murder Mystery.

DETECTIVES ON TRAIL

Wife and Brother-in-Law of Slain Man Recover After Collapse.

(By the Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—The mysterious "Quaker girl" said to have been mentioned by Earle Remington, was being sought today by police detectives who are trying to find a clue to the identity of the person or persons who shot him down near his own doorway last Thursday night.

The search for the "Quaker girl" was started after S. F. Rutgers, a member of the party of six with whom Remington dined the night before he was killed, was reported to have told his employer that Remington had said it was too bad that his "Quaker girl" could not be there too.

The detectives think it is possible that the girl could give information of value. Rutgers is reported to have placed $5,000 with an attorney to be used in an effort to find Remington's slayers.

Mrs. Virginia Stone Remington, widow of Earle Remington, had recovered sufficiently from the effects of the shock of the tragedy and other ailments last night to make a statement to the police. The officers said they considered it important that it be kept a secret. Her brother T. E. Milster, who was also under a physician's care, returned home today.

Private funeral services for Remington were to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT IN BIG NEW YORK RAID

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Sixty-four persons have been arrested in what secret service operatives believe to be the uncovering of one of the most gigantic counterfeiting plots on record, according to Joseph A. Palma, chief of secret service operatives in the New York district. Twenty-eight were rounded up last night.

Nine large central plants were located on Cornelia street, Greenwich village, Manhattan, Brooklyn, and in New Jersey. From these a flood of bills in denominations of $2, $5, $10 and $20 were sent to all parts of the United States, Cuba all parts of the West Indies and Europe. In addition to the bills gold and silver coins of the United States were turned out as well as million of counterfeit internal revenue stamps and liquor labels.

Technical Defect Cause of Action of St. Louis Judge

(By the Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 21.—Nineteen indictments against H. H. Hoehenschild, president of the defunct Night and Day bank, charging him with assenting to receiving deposits when the bank was in a failing condition, were thrown out by Circuit Judge Faulkenhain who said the indictments contained a technical defect.

It is said that the depositors lost approximately $1,000,000 when the bank failed in January, 1922.

IRREGULARS RIOT DUBLIN OFFICES

Government Headquarters Put in Danger by Rebel Attacks.

(By the Associated Press)

DUBLIN, Feb. 21.—An organized attack was made today on the government offices in Dublin. An attempt was also made to set the income tax office on fire. National troops, according to a statement by the local government board, fired on the attackers, killing one of the irregulars and capturing three others.

Three government offices were raided simultaneously. Some of the attackers attempted to start a conflagration, while others kept up a rain of bullets from the roofs of adjacent buildings. An auto car used by the irregulars in the attack on the central offices was captured by the government forces. It was found to contain mines which were evidently intended to be used in destroying the buildings.

The fighting caused intense excitement among the population. When the attacks began many people were on their way from their offices and places of business to lunch. The firing caused a stampede. Tram cars and autos were quickly driven to safer quarters and the streets cleared and a call for the fire brigade turned in.

After the fight had continued for an hour the irregulars withdrew.

Law Officers in Unison on Booze Law Enforcement

A concentrated movement to rid the city and county of booze peddlers is apparently under way at the present with each department of law enforcement, city, county and federal officers participating.

Recent raids have netted five victims in the net of the law and these alleged violators are awaiting action of the federal commissioner at Coalgate.

Week-end raids were conducted through the concentrated efforts of city, county and federal authorities.

ADA FIREMEN HAVE HAD FEW CALLS THIS YEAR

Chief Somer Jones reports that during January eight alarms were turned in, but $100 would cover the total loss.

In February only two calls have been made. One of them was to extinguish a blaze that threatened to destroy an auto last Sunday and another today. There was no loss in either case.

STATE BUILDING APPROPRIATIONS IN SENATE FIRE

Looney on Committee Named to Probe Expenditure on Institutions.

ADJOURNMENT DATE UP

Two Important Administration Measures Considered by Upper House.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 21.—A resolution authorizing a committee to investigate the expenditure of money appropriated by the last legislature for building and improvements for state institutions was adopted unanimously by the senate today.

The resolution provided for the taking of sworn testimony regarding the various projects. The committee named under the terms of the resolution is composed of Senators Horner, Johns, Darnell, Looney of Ada, and Cline.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 21.—Two of the foremost administration measures were being considered by the upper house of the Oklahoma legislature today. The state marketing commission bill, which was fiercely contested by its opponents on the house before it passed, was to be transmitted to the senate on first reading while a renewal of the fight was expected to be opened on the $2,000,000 appropriation contained in the state warehouse bill.

The market commission measure provides for the regulation of trade in farm products by the state.

A proposition of a bonus to former service men is expected to be submitted shortly. The committee on soldier relief expects to confer with representatives of the American Legion on the form of the bill to be submitted. Gov. Walton has made no recommendations, but is known to be favorable to the plan. It is thought that the measure will provide for the payment of $30 per month for each month in the service or $50 if the soldier uses it in the purchase of a home.

The state during the next two years can reasonably expect revenues amounting to $28,782,000 with which to meet appropriations of $31,154,136.07 which the legislature plans to appropriate, according to a statement from Representative Nance, chairman of the appropriations committee, based on figures supplied by C. C. Childers, state auditor. The estimate is based on the assumption that the maximum state levy of 3 1-2 mills be made. Only $18,782,000 could be expected under the rate of one-half mill of last year.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 21.—A concurrent resolution was introduced in the senate today setting March 8 as the date for the adjournment of the present legislature. It was drawn by 23 senators and introduced by Senator Wells of Shawnee.

Employment Seekers Decrease Over U. S. Annual Report Shows

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Employment throughout the country during January increased 1.4 per cent over the preceding month, according to figures collected and made public by the bureau of statistics of the labor department. On the other hand, a decrease of 2.8 per cent was registered in the total amount paid out for wages.

The figures were based on reports to the bureau from 4153 firms in 43 representative industries. Increases in the number of employees were reported by 24 industries, decreases by 18 and in one was stationary.

BANKS TO CLOSE THURSDAY SCHOOL TO CONTINUE WORK

Outside the closing of the banks of the city, Ada will continue her normal state of affairs without any outward show of observance of the birthday of George Washington. Schools will remain in session and business houses will continue their labors through the day.

No public program has been outlined for the day while fitting programs will be rendered at several schools of the city.

ADA TO WELCOME DEMOLAY HORDES

Hospitality of City Extended to Visiting Delegates for Convention.

The gates of the city will again be opened to visitors of this section of the state when the DeMolay representatives from towns in this district gather in their annual convention here Thursday.

Every town in the southern district of Oklahoma, which has answered the widespread growth of the offspring of Masonry will be represented here.

From far and wide purple turbans, bedecked with gold tassels will assemble here Thursday in their annual conference. Every chapter in this section of the state is expected to be represented.

The committee in charge of the arrangements are preparing for the entertainment of over 100 delegates from towns in southern Oklahoma.

Committees will be posted to meet all trains arriving here Thursday and escort visitors to the meeting hall. Delegates will form for parade at 1 o'clock after which delegates will be registered. They will later be entertained at a banquet at the First Baptist church before going into business session Thursday night at the Masonic hall.

Many Problems Face Delegates at Meet of Church Leaders

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 21.—Sessions of the Southern Baptist Education association, and Educational association of the Methodist church, South, continued today with addresses by president of the leading church colleges as the main features. The two organizations are holding separate sessions.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, president of Millsap college, Jackson, Mississippi, spoke on the subject, "The Christian College and its Constituents." A number of college presidents were to address the Baptist conference on problems of Christian education.

Guthrie Man Named Head Sunday School Convention of State

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 21.—Rev. E. C. McDonald of Guthrie was elected president of the Oklahoma Baptist Sunday School convention here today. Rev. Elmer Rogers was made vice-president. A constitution providing for annual sessions of the convention was adopted at the morning session.

Dr. J. M. Price of Fort Worth and Dr. Walter Bassett of Dallas delivered the principal addresses of the meeting. This afternoon was to be devoted to departmental conferences.

RUHR OUTBREAKS STIR FRENCH TO SAFETY MEASURE

Claimed German Government Orders Police Not to Discard Uniform.

MANY ARRESTS MADE

Strikes Follow Arrests of Industry Leaders in Rhur Basin.

(By the Associated Press)

DUSSELDORF, Feb. 21.—The conclusion of the sixth week of the Ruhr occupation found the French are relying almost exclusively on expulsion to impress the Germans with the fact that the orders of Gen. DeGoutte must be obeyed. The Germans in turn have adopted the protest strike as the most effective way of showing their indignation.

The expulsion of the burgomaster of Dusseldorf followed closely the removal of Dr. Greitzner from the Ruhr caused a sensation resulting in a walkout by nearly all the workers of this city. Only the street railway employees and power plant men were on duty last evening.

At Mayence the arrest of the director of posts and telegraphs was followed by a walkout of the employees of this service and French troops took over the offices. Several railroad officials at Mayence received jail sentences of 10 to 60 days for encouraging strikes and defying the authorities.

The French have expelled the mayor of Dortmund for refusing to carry out the orders of the French.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The Prussian minister of the interior has forbidden the German police in the Ruhr to appear on duty without uniforms and weapons. It is believed that the aims of the order is to prevent the occupational authorities from organizing a force of ununiformed and unarmed police in the district.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The French government has learned that the Berlin authorities have instructed German officers in the Ruhr to adopt a prudent course and endeavor to come to an understanding with the French authorities, it was said today in official circles.

Claim Klan Silence Prevents Grand Jury Probe of Killing

(By the Associated Press)

PAWNEE, Okla.—Charging that it was hampered in its investigation of a murder case by the refusal of alleged members of Ku Klux Klan to testify concerning the activities of the organization, the Pawnee county grand jury recommended that law enforcement officers, "county and state, take steps to remedy this evil, if it can be done under existing laws."

The grand jury has been investigating the slaying of a man alleged to have been a member of the Klan, who was killed at Quay in October of last while with other members of the organization he "was engaged in an attempt to whip a citizen of Pawnee county," the statement said.

Woman Acquitted on Charge of Plotting for Husband's Life

(By the Associated Press)

DAYTON, Feb. 21.—Mrs. May B. Ford, charged with attempting to conspire against the life of her husband, a wealthy Wayne county farmer, was acquitted by the jury last night after a short deliberation.

Mrs. Ford is alleged to have offered a detective, who posed as a laborer, $20,000 if he would kill her husband. The defense contended that it was merely a frameup on the part of her husband.

Utah Prominents Face Charge for Smoking in Public

(By the Associated Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 21.—Four prominent Salt Lake citizens face charge of violation of Utah's anti-cigarette law, after being arrested by a deputy sheriff. They are D. C. Bamberg, well known politician and Republican nominee for the United States senatorship last year, Ambrose McKey, Edgar Newhouse, and J. C. Lynch, a local capitalist. They are charged with smoking in a public place, contrary to the provisions of the Utah Law.

DEBT PAYMENT WITH LIBERTY BONDS

Not the least interesting thing about the British debt settlement is the announcement that the British government would probably make its payments in Liberty Bonds. The bonds will be bought expressly for this purpose, by experts taking advantage of changing market conditions, and will be held in the British treasury until the time for payment. Britain can afford to do that because of the interest she will get from the bonds while they are in her possession. When they are turned over to the United States treasury, the bonds will naturally be cancelled, and thus so much of the war debt incurred by this country will be wiped out.

There is a special fitness in such a method. It was always the intention of the United States government that repayment of the loans made to the Allies should be applied to the reduction of the American debt, which was largely incurred in order to make those loans. It was specified, indeed, in 1917, by an act of congress, that repayment should be so used. It will be particularly easy to carry out the plan when a debtor buys and turns over the American bonds for cancellation, instead of the United States treasury having to go into the market itself, with cash paid, and buy the bonds for retirement.

Such procedure will naturally tend to strengthen the market for government bonds. There will hardly be any wild boom, however, because the British payments for the present and near future will be much smaller than the yearly average over the proposed 62-year period.—Tulsa World.

MAKING MORE STATE JOBS.

There never are enough government jobs to satisfy the faithful who are want to regard politics as a meal ticket. That there is a growing disposition to meet the demand is indicated by legislative proceedings in this state. Increasing the assistant attorney generals to eleven is a case in point, but hardly an isolated instance. There are seven such legal advisors now, and the layman will wonder what increase of litigation or investigation warrants so formidable an increase. Published summaries of the appropriation measure also mention increased stenographic salaries for the attorney general's department, and the addition of these legal assistants may reasonably require a larger clerical force, says the Oklahoma City Times.

There are too many state jobs to suit people whose principal part in governmental affairs consists of voting occasionally and paying taxes more frequently. If this is government by the people and for the people, their welfare should transcend the matter of providing sinecures county chairmen and others credited with political influence. If the pork barrel and pie counter could be eliminated from government; if the machinery for passing and administering laws were simplified and efficient, the cost of government could be greatly reduced, without hampering the affairs of state. That course will be taken, to some extent, at least, when the people make their protests felt.—McAlester News-Capital.

A young man makes a great mistake when he begins life as a candidate for an office of some sort, either elective or appointive, and spends the rest of his days trying to hang onto something. An honest office-holder seldom has more than a living at best and then there is always the overshadowing dread of a change of opinion on the part of the fickle public or his superiors and that he will be left high and dry and with little training for anything else. No matter how well he fills a position he gets little appreciation from the public and if his job happens to be an appointive one a change in superiors generally means a new man in his place. In short, the professional office-seeker is following a course which ends in a blind alley.

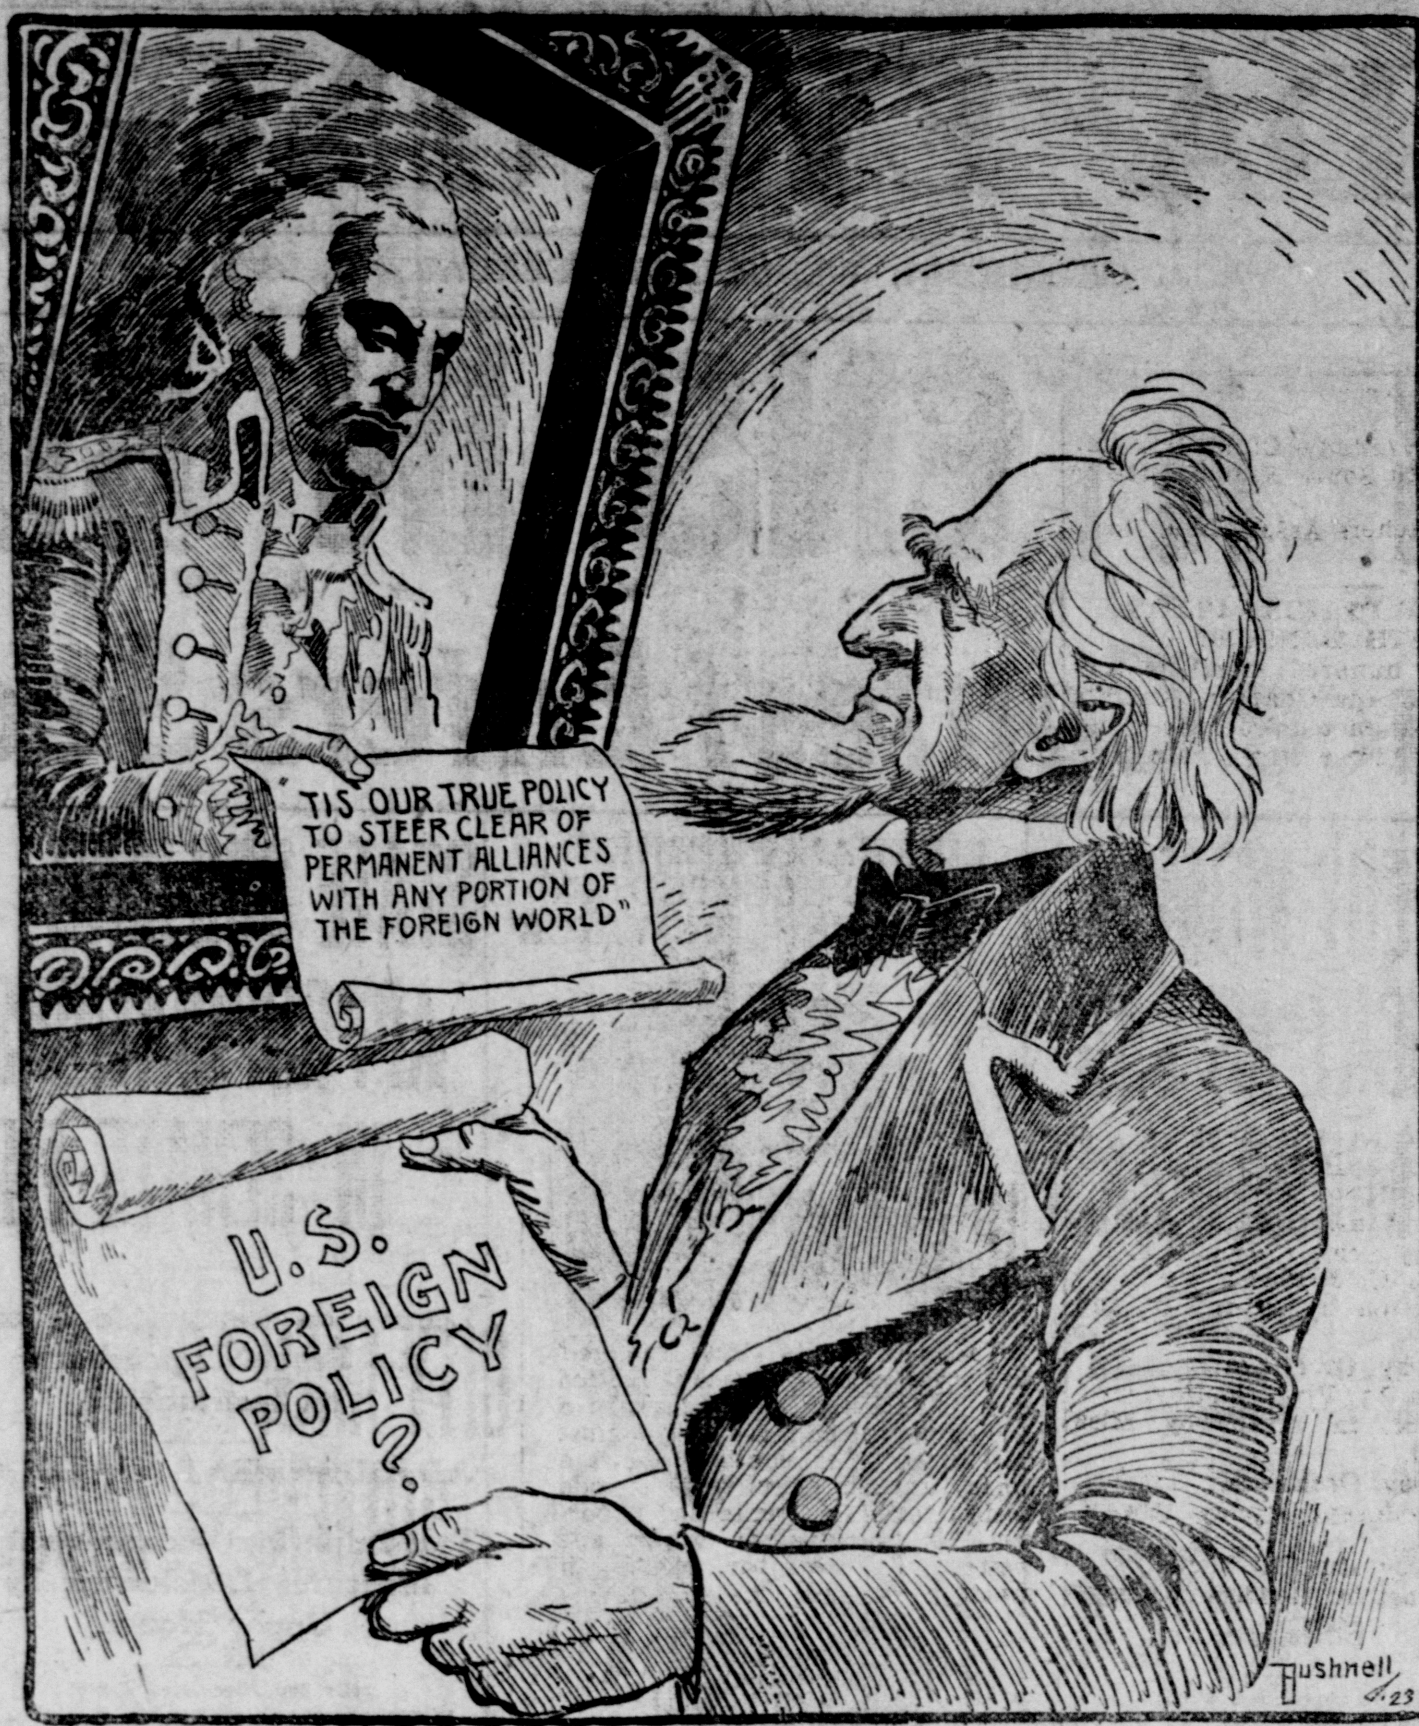

Nothing more has been heard of the Turkish ultimatum giving the allies just so many hours to get their warships away from Smyrna. They said most emphatically that they would not go and would shoot if the Turks insisted. Finding that they really meant business the Turks shut up and said nothing more about it, thus admitting that they had been bluffing and had just pulled one bluff that they could not get away with. Somewhat bad for the new reputation for being hard nuts the Turks were trying to build.

The News will begin in the near future a series of articles on the water situation here. We are going to get the facts just as accurately as possible and give them for the information of the public. It is apparent that something will have to be done before long or the city will be up against higher insurance rates and an inadequate water supply for domestic as well as industrial purposes.

In 1921, 10,000 new books were published in the United States. Last year the number fell to less than 7,000. Could it be possible that we are becoming less literary in our tastes, or have we fewer aspiring authors?

It will be all right to talk about showing one's colors, but if every man kept his real color on display, what a lot of yellow there would be among the scenery.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY REMINDS US—

The Forum of the Press

College Education and the Birth Rate.

(New York Times)
Is college education for women a factor in the declining birth rate? This and other questions are partly answered in a report in the forthcoming issue of the American Journal of Sociology. The material is taken from a study made by members of the class in statistics at Mount Holyoke College under the direction of Professor Amy Hewes, head of the department of economics. The figures tend to show that college educated couples have smaller families and that the college education of the mother is a more influential factor in this connection than is the education of the father.

The conclusions are based on data gathered from the families of 670 students and from their parents' families.
"In the parents' generation the average number of children in the family was five," says the report. "But in the students' generation the average number was three. This is a significant shrinkage for the short span of one generation, but the figures in this form give proof that the sharp drop in the size of the family is characteristic of college families only. The next step was therefore the comparison of the number of children born in families which had not felt the influence of higher education. So small a proportion of the families in either generation (355 in all, or less than one-fifth) had gone to college that the figures are inconclusive; but as they stand they indicate that college education for the parents means smaller families than they would otherwise have and that it is the college education of the mother which is the more important in keeping down the size of the family."

"The average number of children born in families in which neither parent had a college education was 4.6; in case where the father had a college education but the mother had not the average number of children was 3.7; where the mother alone had gone to college the average, the lowest of all, was 3.1, and where both parents were college trained the average number of children born to them was 3.6."

"The number of children born however, is only a partial indication of the effect of college training on the ultimate size of the family, for the proportion of children who survive is a figure which is demanded by modern school and legal. Here again the results are not conclusive, but the indication is that the children of college parents have the better chance of surviving and that it is in the families in which the mother is a college woman that the proportion of children who survive is greatest."

"In the students' generation 90 per cent of the children of college parents were still living, but only 85.9 per cent of the children of non-college parents were living. Where the mother alone had gone to college the figures were close to the percentage for both parents (91.7 per cent). In the parents' generation the percentage of survival for the children was 68.3 in the families where both parents were college-trained and 66.9 where neither had gone to college. In cases where the mother only had attended college the percentage of children surviving was highest of all—77 per cent."

The Problem in the Ruhr (Ardmoreite)
Although at the outset Premier Poincare told the French chamber of deputies that two or three months might elapse before there were definite results of the advance into the Ruhr, already, after only one month, there is impatience in France and reports seem to indicate that Mr. Poincare, with his own political fortunes in view, may employ this impatience to lead an opposition to the government. In Germany also division of sentiment is reported, as is only to be expected. Stipules is reported to have come round to be ready to yield, probably realizing that his commercial interests require such action, but it is said that the people who might have followed his lead in the beginning are not now in sympathy with his changed view. It begins to look as if the longer a settlement is delayed, the greater the conflict of element and the more difficult the problem becomes.

The New York World, which strongly opposed the advance into the Ruhr at the outset, now concludes a critical article, taking a very unfavorable view of the situation, particularly so far as French interests are concerned as follows: "As a result of the Ruhr expedition France is by way of destroying all chances of reparation. But she is also by way of gaining the power to fix her flag on the Rhine." If that is so, surely there is all the more reason for Germany to act quickly, coming to terms and agreeing to the most favorable compromise she can secure. If France has power to "fix her flag on the Rhine" and will do so if she fails to gain her avowed ends, if the Germans force and dread such a consummation, their divided sentiment and obstinate policy of drift and delay are but the more misguided and surprising.

Contest Proceedings to be Filed on Klan Candidate in Texas

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Political opponents of Earle B. Mayfield, who defeated Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas for a re-nomination last year in a campaign in which the Ku Klux Klan was made one of the issues, said today that contest proceedings will be filed in behalf of George Peddy who, was defeated by Mayfield at the general election. Both Mayfield and Peddy are Democrats, but Peddy received the Republican endorsement also.

Some of Peddy's counsel are already in Washington and others are said to be on the way here. The contest is to be filed before the adjournment of congress so that Mayfield's rights can be challenged as soon as the next congress convenes.

CHURCH SHOULD BEFRIEND LABOR

New York Pastor Claims Aim of Church and Labor Should be Same.

(By the Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 21.—The attitude of the Church toward Labor should be friendly because the aims of Labor are in harmony with the aims of the church, Edmund B. Chaffee, of New York, told the meeting of the council of Cities of the Methodist Episcopal church here today.

"Of the 46 million Protestants and 27 million Catholics in this country, the majority are 57 years said Mr. Chaffee. They go to make up the 40,000,000 or more gainfully employed. As the labor movement has to do with their economic well being they must be interested in it."

"Labor must be interested in the Church because to win the American people it must win a population of which the vast majority are church members. Labor needs the moral idealism which the church possesses."

"The attitude of Labor in Russia has been hostile to the Church. On the continent, generally hostile; in England, most hostility prevails but it is moderated by some leaders; in the United States where the labor movement is relatively small we have something of the same hostility as in England and a large amount of indifference; here some of the strongest unions are Jewish."

"The attitude of the church towards labor in Russia has been hostile; on the continent hostile; in England a mixture and in the United States a spirit of hostility prevails."

"But about 15 years ago a change set in. The church is meeting the situation as shown by the work of the Federal Council; the awakening of the Y. M. C. A. to the industrial problem; the publication of the Steel Strike report; the church league for industrial democracy; the awakening of the Theological Students; the more friendly attitude of the ministry and the work of the Labor Temple in New York."

Mr. Chaffee concluded his address with a plea for greater cooperation between the labor movement and the church.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS PLEASE GUESTS WITH BANQUET

Over one hundred members and guests of the Ada Chapter, Knights of Pythias banqueted Tuesday evening in the Odd Fellows rooms in court building.

Robert Wimble, serving as toastmaster, offered a novel program for the entertainment of the knights and their guests. Talks of interest, musical numbers and selections of Snappy's Snappy jazz orchestra furnished the peak of amusement for the knights and their guests. An interesting talk was rendered by Professor Molloy of the College on the subject of knighthood.

Sandwiches and cake was served to the members and guest present.

COOPER SLATED FOR BOUT HERE

Ada Boxer to Enter Ring
With Jack Howe of Fort Worth.

Arche Cooper will again face one of the best of the southwest here February 28, when he enters the ring against Jack Howe of Fort Worth, Texas, who comes here represented as one of the best outside the big ring.

No preliminaries have yet been arranged to precede the bout but it is expected that A. R. Dixon, Cooper's manager will make this arrangement before the bout.

Cooper and Howe will mix things for 10 rounds providing the atmosphere prevents such a lengthy contest. Cooper will enter the ring stripped to 155 pounds and Howe will balance the scales at 158.

Howe is reputed to be one of the toughest boxers of Texas and has to his credit 22 out of the last 27 of his bouts in that state and others in the south.

Cooper has not yet tasted the glove of defeat, his nearest escape being in his last bout with Battling Ivey of Wilson. Cooper has won his other bouts with comparative ease.

The bout will be staged in the Armory Hall under the auspices of the American Legion.

CITY MAN LOSES HOMENESS SENSE

Resident of City Loses Home Effect for Cleanliness.

(By the Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 20.—The city man, in a sense, lost man. Rev. Ralph W. Sockman, of New York City, told the Council of Cities of the Methodist Episcopal Church meeting here today, "No longer rooted in the soil, he lacks a sense of 'at homeness.'" continued Rev. Sockman. "In our extremely large cities he loses his vivid sentiment of civic pride. The denizens of 'Gopher Prairie' and the 'Babbitts' of sixth sized cities may be inspired by a boosting loyalty to serve the institutions of their home towns. But in New York City, for instance, men feel the place has momentum enough to run itself."

"They will get what they can out of it for themselves. The commuting bees suck their sustenance from the skyscraping petals of our cities and then make their deposits in the suburban honey combs. If the man on Broadway or Michigan Boulevard felt the same sense of responsibility as on Main Street, the moral and civic tone of our metropolitan centers would be immeasurably elevated, and the problem of the city church would be almost wholly changed. The individual personality wifits in a crowd."

"The lossness of the urban mind shows itself not only in lack of responsibility but in its craving for change. Our cities are places of unrest. The very environment is one of rapid ruin. A passerby looks at a building twice because it may not be there when he returns next week. We are told to look out to the hills whence cometh our strength. The hills suggest the eternal. But these man-made walls of city stone suggest not the eternal, but the temporary. This changeableness of environment is reflected in the interests, the thinking, the loyalties of the urban dwellers."

"The city mind tends to become a movie mind. Our age generally is characterized by fragmentary thinking. Ours is the generation of the short story, the choppy scenario, the sketchy impressionistic art. In the city this trait is accentuated. Here rises a real question for the church."

"The preacher must recognize that the people are not thinking things through. In my opinion the most outstanding single need of the Methodist Episcopal Church today is for constructive theological preaching which can interpret to people their flitting half-thought-out ideas. The lost urban mind find a guide in the pulpit."

"Social castes separate and confuse the city dwellers. The public school is no longer the meeting place of rich and poor on a plane of comradeship."

"Who shall dissolve these race and class distinctions, if the Church does not? The Church must be a drill ground for democracy?"

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Disliking the prospect of a month's visit to her austere aunt, Lady Erythea Lamb, at Jervaulx, and her cousin, Alexander Lamb, Almee, a vacuous daughter of the Very Reverend Viscount Scroope, is in a rebellious mood. CHAPTER II.—She wanders into the park, there encountering a strange youth in trouble with a motorcycle. He laughingly introduces himself as "Bully," American. The two cement the acquaintance by a ride on the motorcycle, the "Flying Sphinx," and part. With Georgina, her cousin, Almee sets out for Jervaulx. On the way she decides that Georgina shall impersonate her at Jervaulx, while she goes on a holiday. Georgina's horrified protest is unavailing.

CHAPTER III.—Happy in her new freedom, Almee again meets "Bully." He tells her his name is Spencer, and she gives him a job. "Bully" offers to take her into partnership in selling the Sphinx. In a spirit of madcap adventure, she accepts. The two proceed to the town of Stanhoe, taking separate lodgings in Ivy Cottage.

CHAPTER IV.—That night Almee visits Georgina and learns that the deception has not been discovered. By her dominant personality she compels Georgina to continue the subterfuge.

CHAPTER V.—On a trial spin next day on the Sphinx, with "Bully," Almee almost collides with a carriage in which are her aunt, Georgina and Alexander. The pair escape unrecognized.

CHAPTER VI.—Georgina learns that Lord Scroope is coming to visit Lady Erythea and, realizing that will happen on her arrival, is in hopeless bewilderment.

CHAPTER VII.—While Almee is secretly visiting Georgina at Jervaulx, the place is burglarized. Almee escapes.

CHAPTER VIII

The Plot Thickens.

By sheer force of arrested impetus, Almee and the butler spun round each other at arm's length like skaters on a rink; something ripped loudly, the butler, shooting off at a tangent, collided with a suit of armor pedestaled near the wall. The ensuing crash suggested an insurrection in a hardware shop.

Almee skidded against the wall and, recovering, leaped wildly over the two prostrate relics of feudalism—the butler and the coat of mail—and dashed for the double doors that stood open before her. There was a curious flashing effect as she ran—a gleam, as it were, of whiteness. The next moment she had vanished into the night.

Alexander rushed to the open doors and stared out into the darkness. He heard the sound of the hunt some where beyond the fir-trees. For a moment he thought of joining it. But the starlit gloom gave faint encouragement—pursuit seemed very useless. With a sudden impulse Alexander ran back through the hall, turned on the light, and pulled open the door of the telephone call room. He snatched the receiver from the hook.

"Stanhoe police station—put me through quick!" cried Alexander. Lady Erythea descended the stairs, a superb model for Boudicca among the wreck of the Roman legions. Her eyes flashed fire, her lips were compressed in a thin, tight line, her hand gripped the brass shovel. She glared at the disgruntled butler.

"Tarbeaux!" she cried sharply. "Tarbeaux!"

Mr. Tarbeaux came forward, limping. One hand pressed a crimsoned handkerchief to his nose, which had impacted rather violently upon the good knight's breastplate. His other hand grasped a yard of torn blue cloth, which he waved before him.

"Did you stop that woman?" cried Lady Erythea.

Mr. Tarbeaux's inarticulate answer was in the negative.

"Why not, idiot!" said his mistress. "A houseful of useless incumbrances unable to stop a single—" The empurpled handkerchief caught her eye.

"Why, what is the matter, man? Are you wounded?"

"Proud—shed m' blood—ladyship's service!" snuffled Mr. Tarbeaux.

"Couldn't help skirt tearin', m' lady."

"What!"

Mr. Tarbeaux, with a silent but splendid gesture, laid the piece of torn skirt upon the hall bench.

"Clue, m' lady," he said, with the air of a bankrupt making the most of his assets. "With this it should not be difficult to trace the thief."

"Trace her!" snorted Lady Erythea. "If you had held on to her there would have been no need to trace anything!"

Mr. Lamb joined them; his mild eye at once apprehended the significance of the piece of serge.

"I cannot see that Tarbeaux is to blame," he said in his aunt's ear; "he did his best, and after all it is unimportant."

"Unimportant! The infamous creature has got clear away!"

"My dear aunt! That stupid girl cannot have been the thief. You do not really suppose this burglary was committed by a woman?"

"Most certainly I do!" cried Lady Erythea. "I can believe anything of the modern woman—anything! She hid when the alarm sounded, and made a desperate dash for escape when I discovered her. It is as clear as daylight to anybody but a fool!"

It is certain she had my emeralds upon her at the time, and it is lucky none of you are killed—though it would be very little loss. Tarbeaux, did you recognize the creature whom you allowed so egregiously to escape?"

"No, m' lady. It was too dark. And the incident was somewhat sudden," said Mr. Tarbeaux apologetically. "It was a young person—I am unable to say more. But I am sure she was not one of our household."

"I have telephoned the police at Stanhoe," said Mr. Lamb; "they are coming immediately by car."

"A gleam of intelligence at last! Thank you, Alexander—and forgive me—I am overwrought. My censure does not apply to you. The whole affair is appalling!" said Lady Erythea, clenching her hands. "My pearls, the diamond chapter—these comparatively are trifles—but the emeralds are gone. The Lambe emeralds!"

The audience shrank before her wrath.

"It is incredible! Twelve years ago the abbey was broken into—this is the second case. I had taken every possible precaution, under skilled advice. My safe is modern; I considered I had made the house itself impregnable at night. So it would have been, had I been adequately served. What measures did you take, Tarbeaux? I was absurd enough to think I could rely upon you, in an emergency like this!"

"I retired at the usual hour, my lady, to my room in the passage," said Mr. Tarbeaux unhappily, "as I have done for years, by your instructions, in view of—er—er—an emergency like this. One of the alarms roused me; I rose immediately, only waiting long enough to don a garment—"

"Go on, man, go on!"

"While putting them—while putting it on, my lady, I sounded my bell, which connects with the other menservants' rooms, and ran into the hall. At that moment I thought I heard feet on the gravel outside, and unbolting the front door I rushed out—"

"Leaving an exit for any thief in the house to escape by!" snorted Lady Erythea.

"Tarbeaux!"

Mr. Tarbeaux came forward, limping. One hand pressed a crimsoned handkerchief to his nose, which had impacted rather violently upon the good knight's breastplate. His other hand grasped a yard of torn blue cloth, which he waved before him.

"Did you stop that woman?" cried Lady Erythea.

Mr. Tarbeaux's inarticulate answer was in the negative.

"Why not, idiot!" said his mistress. "A houseful of useless incumbrances unable to stop a single—" The empurpled handkerchief caught her eye.

"Why, what is the matter, man? Are you wounded?"

"Proud—shed m' blood—ladyship's service!" snuffled Mr. Tarbeaux.

"Couldn't help skirt tearin', m' lady."

"What!"

Mr. Tarbeaux, with a silent but splendid gesture, laid the piece of torn skirt upon the hall bench.

"Clue, m' lady," he said, with the air of a bankrupt making the most of his assets. "With this it should not be difficult to trace the thief."

"Trace her!" snorted Lady Erythea. "If you had held on to her there would have been no need to trace anything!"

Mr. Lamb joined them; his mild eye at once apprehended the significance of the piece of serge.

"I cannot see that Tarbeaux is to blame," he said in his aunt's ear; "he did his best, and after all it is unimportant."

"Unimportant! The infamous creature has got clear away!"

"My dear aunt! That stupid girl cannot have been the thief. You do not really suppose this burglary was committed by a woman?"

"Most certainly I do!" cried Lady Erythea. "I can believe anything of the modern woman—anything! She hid when the alarm sounded, and made a desperate dash for escape when I discovered her. It is as clear as daylight to anybody but a fool!"

It is certain she had my emeralds upon her at the time, and it is lucky none of you are killed—though it would be very little loss. Tarbeaux, did you recognize the creature whom you allowed so egregiously to escape?"

Carl Doesn't Hope to Lick Jess But Bantam Feels Real Frisky

By NORMAN E. BROWN

How Joe Lynch, venerable bantamweight champion, can long duck a title match with Carl Tremaine is beyond my comprehension.

Tremaine's decisive victory albeit a disappointing one, over Johnny Curtin in New York the other night does not, in itself alone, entitle Tremaine to a match with Lynch. Tremaine has whipped better men than Curtin. But this battle should have removed the last remaining doubt partisans of Lynch and eastern critics in general might have had that Tremaine is the most formidable contender for the title.

Tremaine has the qualifications which the bantam who takes the clever Lynch's measure must have—science, speed and the ability to finish. Most bantams—and most fighters in all classes—lack the cool courage, poise and determination to finish an opponent once that rival is in distress. Not so with Tremaine. Having worn his opponent into a groggy condition or having dazed him by one well-timed punch, Tremaine watches his prey with the deadly determination and cunning of a tiger and sets upon him at the proper time and with the proper punch to end the agony.

He is one of the most dangerous hitters in the game. Ask any of the boys who have received his left—Harold Parase, Phil O'Dowd, Terry Martin and others. O'Dowd had a victory over Lynch to his credit when Tremaine halted him.

Curtin claims that Tremaine hit him low early in the sixth round. The club physician, where the fight was staged, said he could find no indications of a foul blow. Curtin's physician found indications. The referee did not see a low blow struck. None of the ringsiders observed it. Granted that the blow was struck it must have been accidental. It is hard to cover a deliberate punch up.

But granted that Curtin was hit low, Tremaine had shown conclusively that he had the easterner's measure. And Curtin was touted to the skies as the best youngster in the division until Tremaine took him over.

It looks very much as though Tremaine is nearing his goal. Jimmy Dunn, his doughty manager, says he has hounded eastern promoters and Lynch's manager for a couple of years for a crack at the champ and now asks again how they are going to sidestep such a bout now.

How can they?

U.S. TELEPHONE BUSINESS HUGE

Extent of Use in Country Shown in National Reports.

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—If every man, woman and child in the United States did his share of talking over the telephone last year, each would be entitled to 176 completed calls, according to figures compiled by the Illinois Committee on Public Utility Information.

The committee reports twenty billion telephone conversations in 1922 over the 14,300,000 telephones then in use. To handle the business 305,000 persons were employed by the 53,100 telephone companies, and, the committee impressively adds, the 29,701,000 miles of wire used would encircle the globe 1.183 times at the equator. In other words there is enough of the wire to run sixty-two double wire telephone circuits from the earth to the moon, at its mean distance from the earth and still have 90,000 miles or so left over for other purposes.

Since Dr. Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone in 1876 the industry had grown with such amazing speed that the United States with only a sixteenth of the world's population, now possesses two-thirds of all the telephones in use. The 15,000,000 telephone poles in use says the statistician would build a railroad trestle thirty feet high from Chicago to Buenos Aires, while the additions and replacements each year would carry a telephone line two-thirds the way around the earth.

In 1900, he reports, there was one telephone for every 90 persons; in 1905 one for every 34; in 1910 one to each 16; in 1915 one to each 11, and in 1921 one to each eight.

Next to Americans the people of Denmark are the most telephonically talkative on earth. In 1920 when Americans averaged 160 conversations per annum for each man, woman and child, the Danes were

Would save much needless woe. Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Read what an Ada citizen says: Mrs. R. A. Sullivan, 231 W. 6th St., says: "It was about ten years ago that I took Doan's Kidney Pills and I can tell anyone that they are just fine for kidney trouble. I had awful pains across my kidneys and my back was weak and lame. My back hurt so badly when I stooped I could hardly again straighten. Then, too, when I stooped I would get dreadful dizzy spells and specks would come before my eyes, almost blinding me. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of these troubles and I am very glad to recommend them to anyone who needs a kidney medicine."

Kansas City Claims Cattlemen of Nation at Annual Round-up

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 21.—Cattlemen from all sections of the United States will gather here March 19-22 for the sixth annual Hereford Round-Up.

The event is an annual assembly of men engaged in producing the nation's beef supply. A 4-day auction of registered Herefords is the magnet which draws cattlemen here. It is held under auspices of the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association.

In the Round-up crowds will be sun-browned ranchers, South American ranchmen from Brazil and Uruguay, picturesque "cowmen" from plains and mountains of the United States and rugged stockmen from corn belt farms.

In 1918, when the first sale was held, the hard-working auctioneers disposed of 292 Herefords in ten hours, or one every two minutes. Last year 471 head were sold with the same speed.

Spectacular sales have featured the auctions at past round-ups. Last year a Hereford bull calf raised by Bert Homphill of Olathe, Kans., was bought for $1,025, by a South American ranchman. The top price paid at the 1920 sale was $7,600 for a sire, "Maples Lad 121st" bought by Thomas L. Cashman of Owatonna, Minn., from J. C. Robinson and Sons of Evansville, Wis.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—J. C. Trammel, convicted in the Payne county district court May, 19, 1921, of burglary, and given a five-year term in the state penitentiary, has been granted an executive parole on recommendations by the arresting officers and detectives connected with the case.

Skin Ablaze with Eczema Constant Itching Almost Unbearable!

We know there is one thing that stops eczema, and that is more red-blood-cells! S. S. S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it! Skin eruptions, eczema with all its fiery, skin-digging torture and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting-giants of nature! S. S. S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1836! S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body builders known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. Mrs. Arthur N. Smith, Pearl St., Newark, Ohio, writes:

"My little girl had a very bad case of eczema. She began taking S. S. S. and in well now. I thank you very much. I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. I cannot talk too much about it, for I know it is O. K."

Here is your opportunity. S. S. S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S. S. S. does build red-blood-cells, it cures rheumatism, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, beautifies the complexion, builds you up when you are run-down. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

Dodge Brothers BUSINESS SEDAN

Dodge Brothers, with equal aptness, could have named it the Family Sedan.

In the first place, it is big and roomy—a five-passenger car that will really seat five adults in comfort. There is no space wasted on superfluous adornments. Every inch of body and chassis is put to actual use.

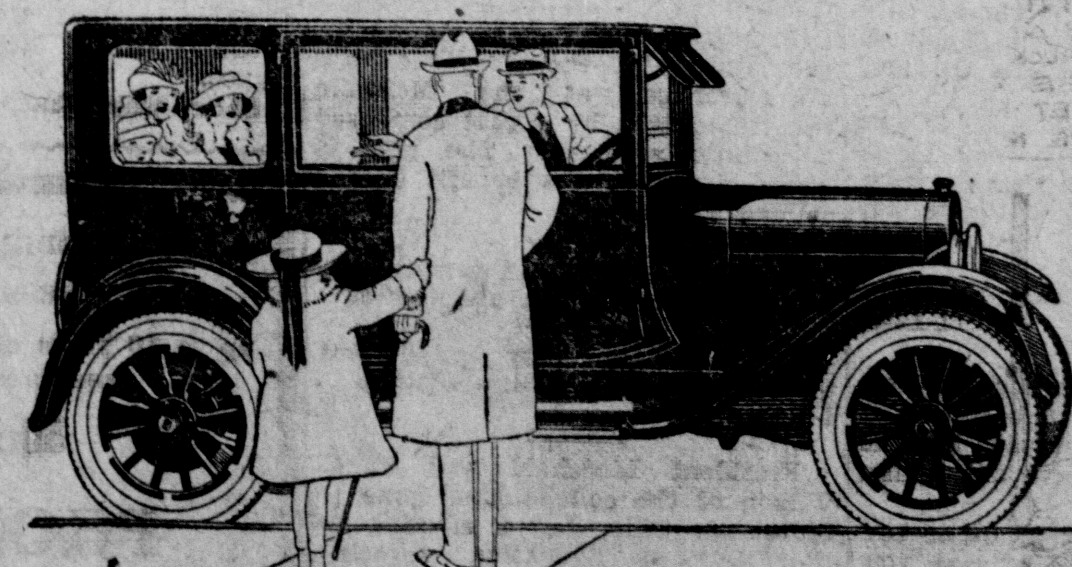

There are no delicate cloth furnishings to be soiled by the children. The seats are upholstered in durable and attractive blue Spanish leather.

There is no sensitive varnish to be easily scratched or finger-spotted. The body is steel-built—a new principle in Sedan design—making it possible to finish the exterior in Dodge Brothers oven-baked enamel, the most durable finish known.

The rear seat furnishings come out—instantly converting the rear section into a spacious carrying compartment—handy for carrying trunks, boxes and household luggage of all sorts.

Children can romp and play to their hearts' content in this car, and when cleaning time comes, you can turn the hose on it—inside and out.

Fight in Court for Five Years on Dollar Fine

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 19.—Having fought his way through several courts for five years, Henry Dolese, of Dolese Brothers company of this city, won a one dollar decision in the state criminal court of appeals in an opinion handed down by the court today.

The case originated in Murray county, May 23, 1918. Dolese was accused of obstructing a public highway. The district court assessed the punishment at a $1 fine.

The opinion today reversed the judgment.

Dolese was accused of having built four houses in the middle of a highway. In the high court, when attorneys alleged the road was not a public highway because land for it had never been legally condemned the state's attorney general confessed error.

Conviction was first secured in a justice of the peace court, in Murray county, according to records of the case, where the fine was placed at $25. The district court upheld the judgment but lowered the fine. It was shown that the road was a "by-way" instead of a highway. Attorneys said it had been originally merely a wagon track leading to a store, about ten years ago, but that the store had since been washed away in a freshet and that the road is now practically untraveled.

TWO MEN EXECUTED FOR MURDER OF SALESMAN

"But when I reached the open there was no one to be seen," pursued the butler, whose throat ached with the effort to make his mistress hear; "there was, however, a dim light, a mere glow, in one of the windows; I shouted, asking whose it was—"

"Which window?" asked Mr. Lamb sharply.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Although there are more horses in Oklahoma this spring than ever before, several thousand, their total value has decreased nearly $3,000,000 in the last year, according to John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture. There were 715,000 horses in the state on Jan. 1, this year compared to 708,000 head last year, he said, but the value this year was estimated at $28,680,000 while last year it was $31,860,000. The average price, he said fell from $45 a head last year to $40 this year. Mules, he said, counted at $37,000 were the same in number both years but values fell $7 a head.

The first skyscraper at Czechoslovakia is to be erected at Brunn. The building will be nine stories high and cost 10,000,000 crowns.

Ten Millions to be Spent On Downtown Improvements At Northwestern University

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Plans for construction of what will be one of the finest and largest urban university campuses in the country, together with the outline of the buildings surrounding this campus, were announced here today.

The campus, that of the downtown division of Northwestern University, at Evanston, Ill., together with the grounds upon which the buildings will be situated, comprise nine acres of ground. These acres face Lake Michigan off Lake Shore Drive at Chicago avenue in downtown Chicago, one mile from the loop, according to the statements of Architect James Gamble Rogers, of New York and President Walter Dill Scott, of Northwestern, made at a tea given today at the Casino club by Mrs. George A. McKinlock, in honor of the event.

The value of the property at completion will be approximately $10,000,000, as the grounds, purchased three and a half years ago cost $2,500,000 and has since doubled in value, and the buildings will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000,000 and possibly more.

According to Mr. Rogers the buildings contemplated will include a Teaching Hospital, a Clinic, the Medical school, the Dental school and a school of Commerce, together with dormitories, commons and gymnasium.

The plan shows the general arrangement on the property as a huge medical center rising many stories in the air with a complete elevator service. The other two schools, Law and Commerce would be in low three story buildings without elevators. These buildings, with dormitories, commons and gymnasium, would surround on three sides, this McKinlock campus, the athletic field of which would be open on the east.

At the main or business entrance are two large auditoriums, one seating seven hundred persons and the other two thousand persons.

President Walter Dill Scott, of Northwestern in addressing those present at the tea said:

"The only advance that offers a hope of constituting an epoch in civilization is an advance that will conserve the benefits already gained in culture, in the learned professions, in science; that will bring all there is to bear on a new conception and a new application of service in all our human relationships."

"Archimedes said if he were given a place on which to locate a fulcrum for a lever, he could move the earth. The campus in Evanston and the Alexander McKinlock Memorial campus offers to the citizens of Chicago a place on which to erect an effective agency for attaining a new epoch in civilization."

ONE OF THE GREATEST PICTURES OF THE DAY

After seeing "When Knighthood Was in Flower" at the McSwain theatre Monday evening, a News representative does not hesitate to pronounce it one of the greatest pictures of the day. To film a picture of this kind was a task of large magnitude, but the packed house of Monday evening will bear testimony to the success of the undertaking. The picture carries one back to the days of Henry VIII and the loves and feuds of the knights and courtiers of the day are faithfully portrayed. King Henry is presented just as the painted and pen pictures of this monarch have brought his memory down to us. Then the costumes of that century are presented with all their gorgeousness. In fact, one lives in another age of the world while witnessing this performance.

The charming little heroine, the king's sister, is a true chip off the old block. She has the iron will characteristic of the Tudors and when this clashes with the will of her royal brother it is a case of Greek meeting Greek. Her love affairs lead through some startling episodes, but in the final outcome she wins her right to choose her husband.

Welcome Extended to Tourists From U. S. by Italians

ROME.—American tourists have begun their regular annual invasion of Italy. Where some of them expected to find excitement and agitation, due to the recent Fascist coup in seizing the government, they are confronted by an Italy tranquil and quiet and without traces of a political upheaval.

Italy is eager for the tourist, and is trying to make pleasant his paths. The abolition of the $10.00 fee for a visa to an Italian passport is expected to increase the tourist business, and the Italian customs authorities are performing their duties with as little annoyance as possible. In many cases travelers are passed with the examination of only one piece of their baggage, and this perfunctory. Trunks and valises that clearly contain personal effects, and would not be used for the transport of merchandise, do not arouse suspicion and are an asset to the tourist.

Henceforth sightseers in Italy will be able to buy season tickets good for any museum, picture gallery, or excavation in the country, and at a material saving. The new tickets cover periods of one, three, six and 12 months, and cost respectively 45, 90, 130 and 200 lire.

You are assured of eyesight safety, comfort and accurately fitted glasses under our care. Price is always reasonable.

Farmers' Column
By Ryan Stewart

Just at present there is considerable propaganda in favor of a more widespread use of lead arsenate in fighting boll weevils. We may not be justified in suspecting any ulterior motive in this but in view of statements sent out by the department of agriculture last year to the effect that this method is of little use anywhere except in places where there are heavy dews, this talk has the ear marks of having been put out by manufacturers of the poison or the machines for scattering it. Since it would take some $3 or $4 per acre for each application, a man would have to make a cracker jack crop to make it pay. Not only that, but the use of poison would doubtless destroy the parasite which preys on the weevil, something that no one would want to happen. The numbers of this parasite that appeared in the fields of Pontotoc county fields last year affords some encouragement that it will be numerous enough this spring to make an even start with the weevil and hold him down. Having seen many of these grubs at work I know they do the business when they take hold.

Poultry House Plans.

To meet an urgent demand for poultry house plans, blueprints have been made for a 20x20 shutter front laying house which will accommodate approximately 130 birds. This house is considered by the poultry department of the A. and M. College to be the house best adapted for Oklahoma conditions. Printed matter accompanying the plans point out the reasons for certain features in the house. A bill of material is also included with this printed matter. These plans are for free distribution and can be had upon request by addressing the Poultry Department of the A. and M. College, Stillwater, Oklahoma.

It is announced that in the very near future similar plans will be ready for brooder houses and also for equipment and labor saving devices.

Smoke House Is Coming Back.

Stillwater, Okla.—The farm smoke house is coming back in Oklahoma—and with it are returning pickled pig's feet, head cheese, and c. c. k. l. n. bread, which once were the delight of the small boy in every farm home.

Hog killing time in Oklahoma never has been the event it used to be in older states.

For one thing, there haven't been enough hogs—at least not in recent years, for the high cost of feed, following the war, almost put Oklahoma out of the hog business. In August, of 1921, it will be remembered, the state board of agriculture sent out an appeal for more livestock of all kinds on Oklahoma farms. At that time, it was estimated, 62,857 farms in the state were producing hogs; the state's hog population had fallen off 722,000, or almost half, from the number listed during the year of statehood. But the swine census of January 1, 1923 shows that the 326,000 of two years ago have increased to 1,401,000.

Another influence that has discouraged farm butchering has been the fact that Oklahoma farmers, bent on money profits from their land, have preferred to sell the hogs on hoof and buy back bacon and packer-cured hams. Failures in cotton and wheat, however, fluctuating hog markets and scarcity of feed crops resulting from dry seasons have turned the tide. The county agent and home demonstration agent, preaching the doctrine of live-at-home farming and teaching the housewife how to preserve meats at home, have done the rest.

So, the present winter, it is estimated, has brought more farm butchering than any other year since Oklahoma began farming.

Summarized in the annual report of Frances L. Brown, state home demonstration agent, county reports for the year 1922 show that of 948 farm women enrolled as meat demonstrators in forty different counties, 710 made detailed reports piling up a total of 109,320 quarts of various kinds of meat canned and 393,505 pounds of pork cured. If the same ratio held for all of the state's 191,988 farm homes, an actual total of 29,516,400 quarts of canned meats and 106,246,350 pounds of cured pork were preserved in Oklahoma last year, or a grand total of approximately 75,000 tons. The average in farm homes no doubt would fall below the record of the 710 women who reported as co-operators but the unanimity of home curing shown by several local surveys recently made indicates that the figures may not be far from correct.

Care of the Incubator

My plan is to start the incubator two days before the setting is made, in order to get it to working properly. Adjustments made after the hatch is started, except to change the temperature a little, are always hazardous. At the start the temperature should be around 102, and kept there for a week. A fraction below will not hurt, but any temperature much higher will be injurious. At the start of the second week it is run up to 103 degrees. For two weeks it is kept at that temperature, and then gradually run up to 105 degrees, or a bit less, and this is done by running it up one-half degree every three or four days to within three or four days of hatching time, when the maximum is reached, and then the temperature is allowed to drop gradually, perhaps 1 degree, to time hatching commences.

I commence turning and cooling the second or third day, and after the first week turn twice a day up to the nineteenth day, cooling only when turning unless more cooling seems necessary. The eggs should not be allowed to get too cold. In this connection, something should be said as to the place for keeping the incubator: If in a cellar it should not be damp as that induces cold, and there should be no drafts. If in a house with windows, keep the shades down to keep the temperature at night and day as nearly the same as possible. When turning is stopped it is a good plan to turn the trays end for end each day, otherwise temperature may not be equalized over all the eggs unless you have an exceptionally good machine. Not much ventilation is needed up to the third week unless the air in the room is excessively dry and warm. If very dry, sprinkle a little warm water over the eggs from time to time. Increase the ventilation a little and when hatching commences cut it down.

Community Cotton Varieties

Should Bill Jones decide on planting purebred cotton in 1923 and his neighbor, Joe Smith, make the same decision, also John Olson, Fred Black and Sam Hill, but each one making a different selection, it would only be a year or two before all of them would be growing a mixed kind of a scrub staple. They would probably all use the same gin and mixing the seed would result from the first fall. Probably other growers who had scrub cotton to begin with would also use the gin and the mixture would be worse.

The only way for Bill Jones, Joe Smith and their neighbors who believe in planting good seed to keep up their standard without purchasing from the breeders every season, is for them to get together and decide on the same variety, and get enough of their other neighbors to plant the same cotton to make it worth while to clean the gin thoroughly before beginning work. Community planting of the same variety of cotton has paid well in better staple and a better market wherever it has been tried. There are hundreds of different varieties or names for cotton in

MAIN STREET—BY—

The conquests of Charlemagne, Napoleon and a few other of those who fill the dusty pages of history are utterly insignificant to the wife of a pretty co-ed ticket seller.

In ye days or oig a noble warrior could rattle his sword and scare the approach of woman to belfry of the castle.

But not so in 1923.

The pretty co-ed just smiles and says buy six and the poor male listener is sure that his Waterloo is at hand and without hesitancy the South. Oftentimes the same variety has a dozen different names, but it all results in confusion. Many still believe that planting the same variety from year to year will cause that kind of cotton to "run out." Seedmen, knowing this belief, sometimes change names of their varieties, thus promoting sales to those who are constantly looking for something new. Thus we have, in many communities, as many different cottons of different staples as there are farmers and as a result no buyer can enter that market and pay as high a price for mixed lots as he could if he was assured that he could fill an order for a certain staple without making a close inspection of all cotton over a large area.

A few years ago seed breeders were more interested in introducing their seed than they were in promoting community selection. Today most breeders are advocates of community plantings. They realize that community selection will not only benefit the growers but will promote the use of purebred seed. Some of these men have spent the greater part of their life in developing better cotton. They are willing to take their chances with competitors in having their seed selected by growers in any community where it has been decided to use but one variety.—Farm and Ranch.

Well the autoist don't miss much on his spin—not even the women and children.

And the undertaker never has a dissatisfied customer.

"THE OUTCAST"Sooners Matched to Battle With Aggie Mat Artists

NORMAN, Feb. 29.—(Special)—Two wrestling matches have been scheduled for the University of Oklahoma wrestling team following the tie match with the Central State Teachers college last week. The Sooners will invade Stillwater for a match with the Oklahoma Aggies Saturday, February 24, according to James R. Tolbert, assistant mat coach. Friday, March 9, the University of Kansas comes to Norman for the only home match scheduled to date.

Attempts have been made to schedule matches with the University of Missouri, Texas and Texas Aggies but conflicts of date desired has made these matches impossible to date.
